

Economic Development June 2009

The details of the softball tournament are coming together quickly and it looks to be a great weekend for Angleton! We are still expecting in the neighborhood of 2500 people in our city for the weekend and we are working hard to make this a great experience for all involved. They are still working out the details of Opening Ceremonies on Friday, July 10 but it looks like they will begin around 5:00 and I hope that you will be able to attend. As I get more information on these events, I will let you know.

The construction guidelines are now with all the local real estate offices except one. They have all been extremely receptive and grateful for the information and excited about having a tool that we all believe will help the community. One office even asked for additional ones to share with realtors in another local office – they thought that even though they were specific to Angleton, that they were a great tool and wanted to share them.

I have received several calls from parties interested in the Intermedics building auction. Most wanted workforce type information but some were also interested in the buildings history. There is one more “open house” for prospective bidders and the auction is expected to occur on July 9. As I hear new information, I’ll keep you informed.

Our maps and brochures that we have been working on are almost complete and most will be ready before the softball tournament. We will be doing one tourism brochure that will take a while longer but all of the pieces are looking wonderful and I am excited to have them for us to be able to use.

As always, if you have any questions, let me know.
