FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

(MONTGOMERY, Ohio) – Volunteers Connect in the City of Montgomery

The City of Montgomery greatly benefits from the generosity of over 500 volunteers and their member organizations represented through Connect Montgomery. Connect Montgomery is a collaborative of 11 civic organizations dedicated to promoting engagement in the City of Montgomery and their member organizations with a one-stop website compiling sponsored activities in the community . Their commitment allows Montgomery to be a unique, connected, engaged destination composed of “citizens” rather than “residents.”

With April 10-16, 2011 designated as National Volunteer Week, the City of Montgomery wishes to thank the volunteers of Connect Montgomery and the members of these service organizations for their commitment to our City.

“Volunteers are the backbone of our organizations. Connect Montgomery organizations count on volunteers to assist in delivering excellent programs and building social connections in our community. In any given opportunity, we are reminded that we cannot organize artistic events, educational workshops, and fundraisers for our schools or worthy causes without the dedication of our members, the volunteers,” observed Susan Pace of the Blue Ash Montgomery Symphony Orchestra and chair of Connect Montgomery.

Connect Montgomery’s service organizations plan cultural events that bring people together, educational series that inform and enlighten, fundraising activities that help others and social connections that strengthen our community. Through their association with Connect Montgomery, these civic collaborators offer support, networking, resources and volunteers to other service organizations.

Visit ConnectMontgomery.org to learn about the organizations and their events or find out about volunteer activities in which you and your family can participate.
