MOORESVILLE PUBLIC LIBRARY TO REDUCE HOURS

Beginning June 19, the Mooresville Public Library will reduce their operating hours on Saturdays and close on Sundays in response to county budget cuts. The library will be open on Saturdays from 10 a.m. – 3 p.m. and be closed on Sundays.

The reduction in operating hours is in response to budget cuts made by Iredell County in the current fiscal year, as well as another projected reduction beginning in July 2010.

“During the past several years, the Town has been able to offset county budget cuts to library services. However, the anticipation of more cuts by the County and a tight budget year for the Town meant we needed to find ways to maintain library services but reduce expenses,” said Town Manager Steve Husemann.

Library staff evaluated attendance numbers, circulation totals and program services before deciding on the reduction in operating hours. No changes in children’s activities or regular programming are expected at this time.

“We are hopeful that we can maintain our current level of programming,” said Library Director John Pritchard.
